Sundown Ranch is a treatment facility whose primary purpose is to provide quality chemical dependency services to adolescents and young adults. The ranch—450 acres of rolling hills, lakes and trees—provides a structured and individualized program to help young people learn to live free of drugs and alcohol. Residents develop a sense of personal identity, and strengthen their self-esteem and self-confidence. The open, peaceful environment—a contrast to the institutional, hospital-like atmosphere of many rehabilitation facilities—is part of the treatment and therapy.
